

AUSTRIAN REVIEW OF INTERNATIONAL AND EUROPEAN LAW – ARIEL

PUBLICATION ETHICS AND PUBLICATION MALPRACTICE STATEMENT

The Austrian Review of International and European Law (ARIEL) is committed to academic integrity by upholding standards of publication ethics and addressing any form of publication malpractice. The ethical guidelines of ARIEL follow the core principles of publication ethics as articulated by the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE). The resources developed by COPE may be found on their website.

Authors should in particular take account of the following documents:

- Brill's Ethical and Legal Conditions
- Brill's Publication Ethics

Peer reviewers should in particular take account of the following documents:

- Brill's Publication Ethics

The Editorial Team is committed to ethical practice as in particular outlined in the following documents:

- Brill's Code of Conduct for Editors
- Brill's Publication Ethics

Anyone that considers that these ethical guidelines have not been upheld may raise their concerns with the editors and/or the managing editor, as indicated in the ARIEL General Information for Authors, or contact publicationethics@brill.com.